

Rural hospitals play an integral role in the local community. Rural Hospitals are not only the healthcare destination for the members of your community, but often integral to the economic well-being of the region. Your neighbors look to you and expect to receive care locally, not from a hospital miles away. TeleNeph eliminates the need to transfer dialysis patients to a neighboring hospital.

Our focus at TeleNeph is supporting rural communities by providing access to highly specialized clinical services.

Keeping patients in their community by delivering care locally

- Patients are no longer transferred to hospitals miles away to receive care.
- Family members and caregivers are no longer driving hours to support them.
- Patients are receiving care at their local hospital from people they know and trust.
